GOULD CAMERA CLUB ANNUAL EXHIBIT ON DISPLAY DURING COMMENCEMENT WEEK END

Under the general direction of Gayle Foster of the Gould Academy, the annual Camera Club exhibit of 50 salon prints by club members, of original montage sheets from which the pages for the Gould year book, the Academy Herald, are made, and of scores of pictures taken of the many activities in sports, dramatics, parties, and dances, is now open to the public on the first floor of Hancorn Hall, in Room 106.

Ever since Mr. Foster's arrival in Bethel nine years ago, this exhibit has been a superlative example of "learning by doing," as well as an artistic delight to the eye. This year's show is well up to the efforts of previous years; in fact, an impartial observer will judge that some of the members' prints this year are the best yet.

A feature this year consists of a number of pictures selected by the club members themselves as permanent exhibits to be hung in the permanent display which is in the basement of Holden Hall, next to the club's dark room. These are of salon quality and attest to the time, effort, and skill put forth by Gould students.

A most cordial invitation is extended to everyone in town to visit this outstanding display, which will remain through Sunday, June 10.

STATE 4-H DAY TO FEATURE DANCERS

One of the many highlights of State 4-H Day at the University of Maine on Saturday, June 23, will be a half-hour show by the Polly Lynch Thomas dancers of Bangor. Some 2,000 members, leaders, parents, and friends of 4-H clubs in Maine are expected to attend State contests will be held in dairy animal judging, Style Dress Review, and Dairy Foods Demonstrations. Tours of the campus, brief speeches, and music will be other features of State 4-H Day.

MAINE GREY 62,000,000 BUSHELS OF POTATOES LAST YEAR

Maine farmers grew nearly 62,000,000 bushels of potatoes in 1950. This was about one-seventh of the national crop, and gave Maine a surplus. The support price program, in its last year of operation, took about two-thirds of the crop and saved many growers from financial disaster. Maine growers will vote June 14 and 15 on continuance of their Federal Marketing Order.

ITS GRASS SILAGE TIME IN MAINE, SAYS TALBOT

It's grass silage time now in Maine, says Richard F. Talbot, Extension Service dairy specialist. He says early-cut grass makes excellent silage and that in most portions of Maine the grass is at about the right stage for cutting this week. He lists its advantages and ways to produce sufficient silage to dig a trench and in a well-drained spot near the barn. County agents will gladly furnish further information on grass silage and trench and upright silos.

Foster Gordon Named To Succeed 'Spike' Leonard

Foster I. Gordon of Orono, assistant county agent in Penobscot county, has been appointed Oxford county agent, effective July 1. He replaces Herbert A. (Spike) Leonard of South Paris, who becomes an associate professor in the animal husbandry department of the College of Agriculture, and part time Extension Service dairy specialist, of the University of Maine.

Foster Gordon is now working in Oxford County with County Agent Leonard in order to get acquainted with farm people and conditions in the area. He worked with the county agents in Northern Aroostook and Franklin Counties from July 1 to November 9, 1949, and then became assistant county agent in Penobscot county, covering the Northern portion of the county.

Born in Woodville and brought up on a farm in Medway, County Agent Gordon received his bachelor of science degree in agronomy from the University of Maine in 1949. There he was treasurer of the Agricultural Club, president of Alpha Zeta, honorary agricultural society. Class day chairman, winner of several scholarships, a member of the Farmer's Fair Committee, and active in intramural sports. He is a member of Phi Mu Delta fraternity.

The effective Extension program in all fields of agriculture has resulted in the men's Farm Bureau membership in Penobscot county reaching the highest point since 1922. Particularly outstanding was the organization of a successful new unit of the Maine Breeding Cooperative in the Howland area, where most men believed it was not possible to do so. He has carried out an aggressive program in all fields of interest to farmers in northern Penobscot county, reports Penobscot County Agent Paul N. Mosher.

Gordon is married to the former Margaret Hobbs, of Medway, and has a year old daughter.

A principal feature of the Camporee was the dedication on Saturday night of the new memorial room in the building on the main road, in memory of Scouts who lost their lives in World War II. At these exercises Governor Payne was represented by General Carter.

FIREMEN TO MEET MONDAY AT NORTH WATERFORD

The Western Maine Fireman's Association will hold their June meeting at North Waterford on June 11.

There will be a supper before the meeting, from 6:30 until 8:30. This seems to be the current fall at all the meetings now and a very good idea it is, allowing members to get home much earlier.

Although the program is unknown at this time, we can be sure of a good one.

A special feature of the meeting will be the talking of goodbyes and farewells to our space-plan "Spud" who is being transferred to the Coast. He will be greatly missed among us and we hope every fireman that can probably make it will go to North Waterford and help us say adieu to Spud.

SUCCESSFUL PARENTHOOD

By M. L. KENNEDY

A BUSY YOUNG MOTHER turned up late at a meeting recently and excused herself on the grounds that her five-year-old's offer of assistance had played hob with her schedule. "Housework never takes quite so long," she explained humorously, "as when Andy is around to help me!"

It is certainly true that the fumbling attempts of inexperienced little fingers to knead the dough, set the table, empty the waste basket, etc., often create extra chores—sometimes breakage and general havoc. But these fingers develop skill through trial-and-error, minor catastrophes pay later dividends. After all, what price a few cracked dishes or a spilled dishpan when weighed against the growing self-reliance of a child?

If you send your young daughter on an errand to the store, she may lose the money with which you have entrusted her; she may bring home the wrong groceries thereby wasting your time and trying your patience. But, give her another chance—she'll learn.

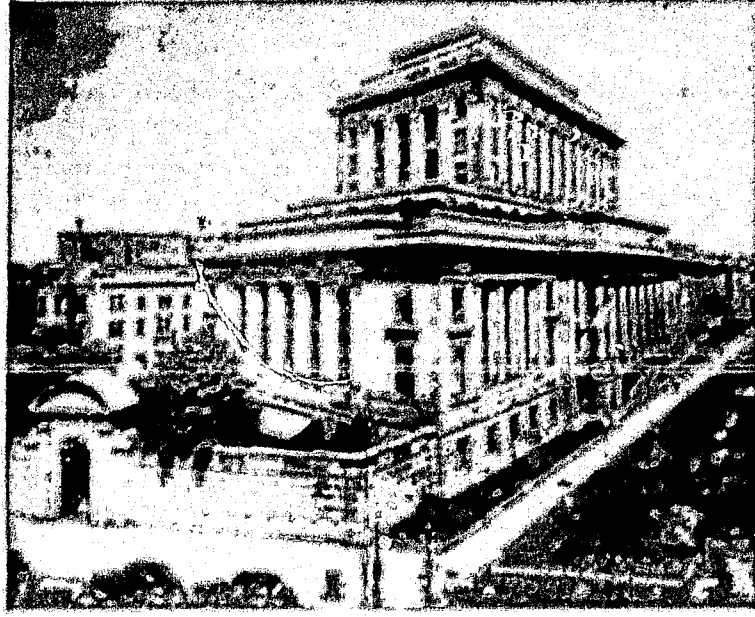

When you let her trundle the cart along the aisles of the supermarket, she may slow your progress and distract you by her questions. But chances are she's noticing things that will make her a good shopper one of these days. And, of course, she already feels tremendously important because she's pushing that cart and being so "serious" about her little friend, down the street, whose mother refuses her help and says, "No, you mayn't carry those parcells. You'd only drop them! Now stop being a nuisance."

To be sure, there's more to developing self-reliance than just letting your child have a fling at an occasional task. You must be ready with endless sympathy and encouragement. You must be eternally on guard against your own impatience. Take for example the case of the little boy who passes the cakes at mother's tea party and drops them frosted side down. There's a household crisis for you! Mother took infinite pains preparing that dainty array of goodies and all that's left of her handiwork is a sticky mess on the rug. She has every right to be disappointed, but she has no right to be cross with the innocent cause of the debacle. To her little boy, the accident is sheer tragedy. See how the eager face that shone above the platter he was so proudly carrying now crumples into frightened tears. He has been found wanting!

If mother scolds every time his effort to help doesn't come off she may scar a sense of failure into his memory and brand him with a feeling of incompetence. "It can't" may become his pathetic watchword when asked to accept responsibility.

But if, on the other hand, mother heroically pulls herself together to say, "Tut, it doesn't matter. That could have happened to anyone," she has not only comforted a present hurt but is also helping lay the foundations for an independent, "try-again-better-luck-next-time" personality.

EASY DOES IT

NEVER let the ham bones get away from you before you use it to make nourishing bean soup with delicious ham flavor. Cook with chopped onion, navy beans and water to cover. Season with salt. If bone does not season soup sufficiently.

For your next dessert try cream puffs filled with easily prepared chocolate pudding, then frost them with chocolate confectioners' sugar icing.

An easy supper in a skillet can be prepared by frying pork chops golden brown, then sprinkling with rice, green pepper and tomatoes. Cook until tender.

RECIPE OF THE WEEK

Cottage Pudding

3 tablespoons shortening
1 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup milk

Cream thoroughly shortening, sugar and vanilla. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with milk. Beat smooth. Pour into a greased 8 1/2-inch by 10 1/2-inch pan and bake in a moderate (350°F.) oven for 40 minutes. Serve with fruit or berry sauce, lemon or chocolate sauce.

Old-fashioned cabbage salad is excellent for hot weather appetites. Season with onion and parsley, then toss with sugar dissolved in vinegar and a bit of oil to make the cabbage shreds glisten.

Give your beef stew an old-fashioned hearty flavor by using the following seasonings in it: clove of garlic, chopped onions, dash of cloves or allspice, bay leaves and Worcestershire sauce.

Stuff pork steaks with an old-fashioned bread dressing, then bake with whole apples which have their centers stuffed with raisins and brown sugar.

Braised short ribs make a tasty dinner especially if they're served with onion gravy. Brown 4 cups sliced onions in fat, then blend drippings with flour and add water or meat stock and seasonings.

Noctules go into a casserole with beef or pork cubes and condensed tomato soup diluted with water. Onions, celery and green pepper, chopped, are good additions for flavor.
